Commentary

In March, global equities sold off sharply due to the conflict in Iran, leading to the closure of the Strait of Hormuz and global energy supply chain disruptions. All equity indices declined, but performance varied significantly based on Middle Eastern oil exposure and a reversal of 'rest of world' vs. US equity outperformance. For example: MSCI World (EUR-hedged) -5.89%, S&P 500 -4.98%, Euro Stoxx 50 -9.14%, Nikkei -12.68%.

US equities acted as a safe haven, outperforming on down days and reducing realized volatility (S&P 500: 17%, Euro Stoxx 50: 22%, Footsie: 18%, Nikkei: 34%).

The fund experienced a sell-off in its directional engine, particularly from Asian indices, and a reset higher in implied volatilities, especially in the first week of the conflict. While the Carry PnL was negative, it was contained due to a large S&P 500 allocation where realized volatility didn't really spike. Portfolio adjustments mostly involved rolling Carry positions, except on the Footsie, which shifted from 100% Carry to 30% Carry / 70% Directional.

Greek's performance attribution: -50 bps in Delta (mostly coming from NKY and HSI), -130 bps in Vega (mostly coming from the Eurostoxx50 and the Footsie where the surge of implied volatilities was more pronounced), -30 bps in Gamma/Theta (relatively small number if we consider how chaotic this month has been in terms of news flow), and +10 bps from cash.

Some recent performance may be lower or higher. As the value of the capital and the returns change over time (notably due to currency fluctuations), the repurchase price of the shares can be higher or lower than their initial price. The performance indicated is based on the NAV (net asset value) of the share class, and is net of all charges applying to the fund but does not account for sale commissions, taxation or paying agent fees, and assumes that dividends if any are reinvested. Taking such fees or commissions into account would lower the returns. The performance of other share classes would be higher or lower based on the differences between the fees and the entry charges. In the periods where certain share classes are not subscribed or not yet created (inactive share classes), performance is calculated based on the actual performance of an active share class of the fund whose characteristics are considered by the management company as being closest to the inactive share class concerned, after adjusting it for the differences between the total expense ratios (TER), and converting any net asset value of the active share class in the currency in which the inactive share class is listed. The performance given for the inactive share class is the result of a calculation provided for information.
